Iodice, Charles Get Alumni Scholarships

John Iodice, Gainesville, is the second recipient of the Alumni Scholarship. The son of Wanda Bennett, Gainesville, who also attended Gainesville College, Iodice is a sophomore at Gainesville College majoring in biology. He graduated from Gainesville High School in 1989 where he was a member of the Beta Club and Thespians (international drama society). At GC, he is a member of Phi Theta Kappa.

Iodice, who attended GC last year on a Foundation Scholarship and a Regents' Scholarship, plans to transfer to either the University of Georgia or North Georgia College after he completes his studies at GC. He will be a pre-medicine major and would like to go into pathology. He expressed appreciation to the Foundation for the scholarship assistance and indicated that "without it, I would have had great difficulty attending college here." He added: "My relationship with GC was so good

Alumni Student Recruitment Committee Formed

Alumni Council member Connie Dennis, Gainesville, has taken a leadership role in a new Student Recruitment Committee established to assist recruitment personnel at Gainesville College as they travel throughout Northeast Georgia seeking prospective students for the College.

Dennis has met with Martha Hembree (Class of 1980), Director of Admissions, and has volunteered services of her committee members in appearing with the Admissions staff at local recruitment events such as PROBE fairs, 18 of which are located in the College’s service area. At PROBE, college counselors meet with high school students and provide information to enable the students to make wise choices in selecting colleges. Alumni Council members will also assist when the Admissions staff mans booths at career fairs and community functions in Gainesville-Hall County and other Northeast Georgia locations.

The Student Recruitment Committee will also assist Theresa Dove-Waters, Director of Minority Affairs at GC, in the recruitment of nontraditional students. Nontraditional students are invited to campus on a Saturday each month for a get-acquainted party where information is dispensed and questions are answered. While Committee members will help in this area, they mainly will be asked to follow-up with phone calls to those who have been invited as well as provide support in other areas.

The first Alumni Scholarship recipient, Melodi Charles of Buford, has received another Alumni Scholarship this year. She is the daughter of Wilma Charles, Buford, and Gene Charles, Statesboro, both of whom attended Gainesville College. She plans to transfer to Georgia State University after graduating from GC.

New Editor Appointed

by Pat McArthuy
Director of Foundation & Alumni Affairs

I am very pleased to introduce you to the new Editor of Anchors Away, Erdine Donovan. Erdine has been an important “behind the scenes” element of the newsletter since its inception, ensuring that the finished product was of the quality we wanted and that you have all enjoyed. She has a journalistic background, having worked for the Board of Regents in Atlanta for 14 years and serving as Assistant Editor of the System Summary, the monthly newsletter of the Board. She has been associated with Gainesville College for over eight years as Administrative Assistant to the President and more recently as Coordinator of Public Information/Marketing.

Anchors Away Editor Erdine Donovan, who also serves GC as Coordinator of Public Information/Marketing and Administrative Assistant to the President.

The format of the newsletter has been changed somewhat with a different paper stock and expanded to communicate more effectively with you. Our alumni and friends mailing list now contains over 8,500 names. Due to the increasing quantity needed, we felt this change was necessary. The cost of this issue is much less than an eight-page issue last year.

We need your feedback. Do you like the new format? Please let us know if we are featuring the kinds of articles you like, and give us suggestions for future articles. All suggestions will be appreciated and carefully considered. Write to the Alumni Office, P. O. Box 1358, Gainesville, GA 30503.
New Representation on Alumni Council
By Bobby Whitlock
President, GC Alumni Association

It is a real pleasure for me to serve as President of the Alumni Association this year. Other officers serving with me are Linda Stokes, Vice President; and Sherrie Rowland, Secretary/Treasurer.

The Alumni Council of the Alumni Association held a very successful dinner meeting at the College on August 13. We had a good attendance — more than 45 were there to help finalize plans for the year.

Twenty-six new Alumni Council members were introduced at the meeting. I would like to highlight each of them in a brief way.

— One-Year Term: Heather Moore, Student Government Association President at GC, is the student representative on the Council; Bob Scanlin, Gainesville, is the Director of the Georgia Mountains Center.

— Two-Year Term: Jean Buffington, Gainesville, is a Career Center Paraprofessional at East Hall High School; Linda Cofer, Buford, is a Media Specialist at Sugar Hill Elementary School (her husband Phil and daughter Heather both attended GC); Rita Crane, Homer, is a teacher at Banks County Middle School; Terry Evans, Duluth, is employed by Citizens Bank of Gwinnett; Sandra Farrer, Cumming, is a graduate student; Britt Henderson, Gainesville, is Assistant Branch Manager for First National Bank; Carol Hoover, Atlanta, is a teacher at Peachtree Elementary School at Norcross; Rodney Robinson, Gainesville, is a salesman for apparel lines; Kerri Rogers, Cornelia, is a special education teacher at Cornelia Elementary School; Don Shubert, Gillsville, is a self-employed C.P.A.; Deborah Smith, Gainesville, is Assistant Seminar Manager with Christian Financial Concepts, Inc.; Lillian Welch, Gainesville, is a Physical Education Instructor at Gainesville College; Donny and Dell Whitehead, Winterville, are Inventory Analyst with Reliance Electric Company and Administrative Assistant at First Presbyterian Church in Athens, respectively; Wesley and Lori Winkler, Gainesville, are Vice President and General Manager of Clenn Winkler & Associates, Inc., and Counselor in the Gainesville Diversion Center, respectively.

— Three-Year Term: Judy Anderson, Gainesville, is a Teacher Aide at Gainesville High School; Mark Bailey, Hoschton, is a pharmacist at Eckerd Drug Company; Todd Burke, Gainesville, is employed by First Atlanta; Lee Chapman, Sugar Hill, is a commercial marketing representative with Jackson EMC; Kathy Jackson, Winder, is a senior at the University of Georgia; Jackie Mauldin, Gainesville, is the mail clerk at Gainesville College; Bill and Janis McDonald, Athens, are a sales representative for Milton's Institutional Foods and a teacher at First Presbyterian Weekday School, respectively; and Scott Williams, Norcross, is a coordinator in the Center for Human Resource Development at Georgia State University.

I think you will agree with me when I say we have fine new representation on the Alumni Council. I hope that you will contact me or any member of the Alumni Council with your suggestions about alumni activities.

GC Begins Self Study

During the 1989 spring quarter, Gainesville College initiated the Self Study process in keeping with its Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) accreditation status. An in-depth institutional Self Study is a requirement every 10 years as one aspect of continuing accreditation with SACS, our regional accrediting body.

The Self Study is coming at a rather natural time for the institution as it positions itself for its next 25 years of service to Northeast Georgia and as it responds to the University System's request that it develop a Strategic Plan which will give directions to its future development.

Dr. Sallie Duhling, Professor of English in the Humanities Division, is serving as Chair of the Self Study Steering Committee. Other members of the Committee are: Mr. Steve Blair, Mr. Garry McLaugh, and Dr. Janie Wolf-Smith. The process will involve every faculty and staff member and

by J. Foster Watkins
President, Gainesville College

Most of you are probably aware that the College through its Foundation received a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity last year. The institution was the recipient of a challenge endowment grant from the U.S. Office of Education which will bring $1,500,000 to the institution if we are successful in raising $750,000 locally. The effort to raise those funds is being headed by Dub Bagwell, a lifetime Trustee of the Foundation, who is being ably assisted by Rich White (GC class of 1971), immediate Past Chairman of the Foundation, and current Chairman Andy Walker. Loyd Strickland, also a lifetime Trustee, is serving as Honorary Chairman. Updating information about this effort and other fundraising opportunities is provided elsewhere in this issue of Anchors Away.

I would like to highlight two recent developments in this campaign.

The Trustees of the Foundation recognized the responsibilities of Gainesville College to serve the full range of students who come our way and to support them in their study endeavors. They set aside $50,000 of the matching grant possibility for special mini-campaigns to be mounted in support of future study opportunities for Black Americans ($25,000) and for our emerging Hispanic population in Northeast Georgia ($25,000). The response to these initiatives has been most gratifying to this point.

Robert Thorpe (class of 1988), a Foundation Trustee and a current member of our Minority Affairs Advisory Committee at the College, assumed leadership in responding to this opportunity to assist Black Americans. He was successful in soliciting the support of Nathaniel Shelton, GC Trustee in 1987-89, to serve as campaign chairman in the effort to raise $25,000. An executive committee consisting of Harvey Clanton, Willie Lipscomb, Charles Morrow, Randall Robinson, and Reginald Perry has been formed to support these efforts.

To this point some specific fundraising strategies include a community blitz, a mail/phone-a-thon aimed at Black American alumni of the College, and a wrap-up banquet with a keynote speaker to be coordinated as part of the celebration of

Robert Thorpe and Nathaniel Shelton

GC’s own Ed Cabell is emerging as a key player in local efforts to provide needed support to the developing Hispanic community. He has been instrumental in some organizing efforts through a coordinating committee which is giving attention to the multiple needs of this new population group in Northeast Georgia. As a part of his interest in it, he has assumed leadership responsibilities in responding to this investment opportunity in support of the future study of Hispanics at Gainesville College. Ed seems optimistic that the $25,000 challenge will be met resulting in an endowment corpus of $75,000 when matched by the federal grant. Call Ed at (404) 535-6208 if you could help in this effort.

Support in these and other endowment campaign initiatives is being provided by personnel in the Advancement Office with leadership provided by Pat McArthy (class of 1983) in her role as Director of Foundation and Alumni Affairs.

While we are still approximately $100,000 away from our ultimate goal, we have been warmed by the success of our efforts to this point and feel confident that we will reach the $750,000 goal before the February 15, 1991 deadline.

In summary, let me remind you as alumni that Gainesville College to this point has benefited from the financial and general support of many people in Northeast Georgia who never had the advantage of experiencing the institution educationally. If the institution is to continue its leadership role and remain a viable force in its service area, increasingly in the future it must be supported by those of you who know firsthand what this institution is about and the role it has played in your life. We take a relatively low-key approach to fundraising generally, but without reservation I challenge each of you as alumni to become a part of meeting the continuing needs of the institution by participating in our Annual Fund Drive and in this endowment challenge opportunity.
Alumni and Community Leaders Assist with Mini-Campaigns

Mini-campaigns in support of the Gainesville College Foundation’s 1990 Annual Fund Drive have been mounted in five counties adjacent to Hall County. Volunteers will call on businesses and individuals in each area seeking funds to provide scholarships for Gainesville College students.

North Gwinnett County: A kick-off breakfast on September 6 in Suwanee began the second year campaign headed by Clayton Bartlett, President of Peoples Bank and Trust, and Von Hughes, Director of Marketing at Peoples Bank and a GC Foundation Trustee. The campaign was to run from September 6 - 20. Volunteers who served in North Gwinnett were: Patsy Wiley, Donnis Bowman, Melinda Porter, Roger West, Dianne Frix, Garrett Reed, Jenny Yancey, Gay Cofer, Mike Jones, Agnes Hamilton, Brenda West, Carolyn Hill, Terry Evans, Paul Ranck, Nancy Byars, Harold Money, Bette Bennett, Nanette Cross, Bruce Rhodes, Nan Painter, Frank Free, Phyllis Free, Eddie Robinson, Bob Perkins, Anita Sud- derth, Jan Marshall, and Charlene Martin.

Habersham County: Doug Dillard, Owner of Cornelia Insurance Company, the second President of the Alumni Association, and current Trustee of the GC Foundation, is heading this campaign which was to run from September 20 - October 4. The kick-off breakfast for this campaign was held on September 21 in Cornelia. Volunteers who served in this campaign, which is the third such effort in Habersham County, were: Kathy Palmer, Bill Oliver, Kerri Rogers, Sidney Roland, Kurt Westmoreland, James Burrell, Lynn Hilliard, Mike Underwood, Denise Green, Wesley Wansley, Tim Hawks, Doug Dillard, Dottie Wonder, Rita Church, Dennis Ivester, and David Irvin.

Jackson County: This is the third Mini-Campaign held in Jackson County in behalf of the Foundation’s Annual Fund Drive. Aaron McKinney, Owner of McBar Acres and member of the Foundation’s Board of Trustees, is coordinating

How “Child Care Solutions” May Help You

Child Care Solutions, a project of Gainesville College, is a telephone resource and referral service for parents looking for child care in the North Georgia area. It is a central source of information about child care in the ten-county Gainesville area.

Solutions refers to family day care homes, group homes, day care centers, pre-school and mother’s mornings out, after school care, and summer camp programs. Child Care Solutions knows that child care is a very important family decision. Its goal is to help parents make the best choices for their children.

Child care consumer counselors, who are sensitive to parents’ needs and have a thorough knowledge of North Georgia child care, are available by phone. Counselors can discuss issues with parents and offer parents referrals to child care in the same phone call. Child Care solutions does not evaluate or recommend specific programs or providers.

A workshop on “Employers and Child Care,” sponsored by the GC Continuing Education Office, will be held on October 30 at the College. Call 404/535-6205 for more information.

Start your child care search by calling Child Care Solutions at 535-6383.
Moore Siblings Make GC Education A Family Affair
by Carroll Jones

The after-school quiet in Sha Moore Lawson's special studies classroom at Riverbend Elementary School lasts only momentarily.

Friends of her twin daughters, Emilee and Allison, 7, peek constantly through the slightly opened door. Emilee, who has bumped her head out on the playground, runs in, crying and distraught, accompanied by her sister, explaining what has happened. A stream of little sympathizers enters behind them.

Sha Lawson, gentle and collected, provides comfort and calm in the midst of all the activity around her.

Lawson, a 1972 Gainesville College graduate, who is now a wife, mother and teacher, grew up in a family that included a twin brother and six other siblings, a possible explanation for why the presence of many children and the small trials and tribulations that accompany their presence seem to her, to be quite usual.

What is unusual is the fact that her twin brother and two of her sisters attended classes at Gainesville College at the same time she did.

At the College with her were her brother, Ted Moore, now a lawyer; Linda Moore Scott, a teacher and currently a graduate student in counseling; and Miriam Moore Welling, also a teacher.

this campaign. The campaign was kicked off at a breakfast held on September 25 in Jefferson and will run through October 3. Volunteers who served in this campaign were: Randall Pugh, Charles Sims, Claude Fullerton, Ron Bond, Guydean Benson, Jimmy Bailey, Barry Lavender, Kelly Hillis, Elton Collins, Jon Milford, Bill Sims, and David K. George.

Forsyth County: The third annual campaign in this county was kicked off on October 16 at a breakfast in Cumming. Headed by Ken Shugart, City Vice President of Home Federal Savings Bank of Georgia — Cumming Office and GC Foundation Trustee, the campaign will run October 16 - 23. Team captains include volunteers from Bank South, Lanier Bank and Trust, Home Federal Savings Bank, Peoples Bank, and First Atlanta Bank.

Barrow County: A one-man effort by GC Foundation Trustee Jim Forrester of Winder to raise funds in Barrow County toward the Annual Fund Drive has been extremely successful since 1985. He continues to be one of the best fundraisers for the College and the Foundation.
ty to get introduced to college work, and it was a great atmosphere to go to school in."

Linda Moore Scott, now living in St. Petersburg, Fla., with her husband, Doug, a clothing manufacturer's representative, and their daughter, Natalie, 12, is grateful for the "good start" Gainesville College gave her.

"I loved it," Scott says. "It was like being with your family. Everyone was so supportive of one another."

Miriam Moore Welling, a reading specialist who lives in Waycross, Ga., with her husband, Lee, a Methodist minister, and their children, Ashley, 12, and Tate, 9, took her Gainesville College education and applied it toward a bachelor's degree in education and master's degree in reading.

She is a newly appointed member of the state book selection committee which meets frequently throughout the year for curriculum selections for the public school system.

Other members of the Moore family include:
- Newton Moore, a partner in Moore and Moore with younger brother, Ted, and a consultant to small colleges. He received his undergraduate and law degrees from Mercer University, for whom he was also general counsel for nine years. He lives in Perry, Ga., with his wife, Cheryl, and their son, Jonathon, 11.
- Gretchen Moore Thompson, a graduate of the Hall School of Nursing at Brenau College, and an intrastomal therapist at the Northeast Georgia Medical Center in Gainesville. She lives in Gainesville with her husband, Ron, and their sons, Ryan, 10, and Zack, 17.
- Theresa Moore Satterfield, who attended Stetson University, and lives in Dalton, Ga., with her husband, Gary, and their sons Chris, 19, and Mike, 18.
- Lisa Moore, who holds a doctoral degree from Mercer University in Pharmacology and is a pharmacist at the Northeast Georgia Medical Center. She lives in Gainesville.

The Moore brothers and sisters are the children of two Mercer graduates, now-retired Baptist minister Willis Moore, Jr., and his wife, Rosa, a teacher and trained musician, deceased since the original set of twins were 10.

Over the years the Moores dutifully moved their seven young children wherever the church sent them. As a result, the family lived in Atlanta, Dalton, Morgantown, N.C., and finally in Toccoa, where Sha and Ted spent their senior year in high school.

The children's father remarried several years after the death of their mother, whom Ted Moore describes as a "really neat person." Sha Lawson says her stepmother, Bonnie, a nurse and mother of her half-sister, Lisa, "has been as much a part of their lives as their real mother was."

All four Gainesville College-bound siblings, who had their "first taste of Gainesville" when their sister Gretchen started at the Hall School of Nursing, worked during their college years to help defray the cost of their education.

Both Sha and Linda worked in the College's fine arts department. Miriam worked in the Student Aid office, as did her sisters also. Ted, who began his Gainesville College career attending evening classes, managed a clothing store in Toccoa during the day.

But even with part-time work for all, it was the College that actually made possible all four students' education, according to the Moore twins.

"The College just seemed to take us under its wings," says Lawson. "We received grants we had not even formally applied for. The money just seemed to be there for us."

"Without the College's intervention, we would not have been able to go," Moore says.

All four students went on to West Georgia College in Carrollton. There, Sha and Miriam received their bachelor's degrees in education, and Linda received her bachelor's degree in sociology.

Ted spent one year at West Georgia and eventually transferred to Mercer University, where he earned both his bachelor's degree in political science and Christianity and, later, his law degree.

Though the family is spread out over two states, the feeling between its members continues to be sweet and strong and important to them all.

"We are spread out," agrees Lawson, "but we have a real bond between us. When something happens, we're there for each other."

Ted Moore says, simply, he could not have grown up in a more wonderful family.
New Construction on Campus

The new Continuing Education/Public Service facility is nearing completion. Containing 40,094 square feet, the facility will house classrooms, a 240-seat lecture hall, and offices for the Continuing Education program. Also, it will contain a 300-seat teaching theatre, offices for the drama program, and a small art gallery. The large lobby will be the focal point for all major College activities.

all administrators and will solicit input in numerous ways from current and former students. A number of committees have been formed which include representation from current and former students.

A key way in which some of our alumni may be touched by this process is through a comprehensive needs assessment survey which is being coordinated by Dr. Norma Seerley. A representative sample of counties serviced by the institution — Barrow, Forsyth, Hall, Habersham, North Gwinnett — was established for the purposes of generating data from a survey document. Principals, counselors, and key community leaders will be involved in this survey including a number of former students of Gainesville College.

Those being surveyed will be asked to evaluate from their perspective the College’s ongoing programs, services, facilities and personnel and to identify the felt educational needs of the community which the College might meet.

To those of you who receive the survey, your conscientious feedback is requested. These data will provide valuable information and ideas for the College in its future planning efforts.

The Steering Committee and Self Study editors will refine the final draft of the Self Study document during the summer of 1991 and have it ready in the 1991 fall quarter. The campus visit aspect of the Self Study will occur on February 10-13, 1992. Depending upon the desires of the Visiting Committee, a number of alumni and area persons knowledgeable of Gainesville College may be invited to campus to share their thoughts with the Visiting Committee at that time.

Updates on GC’s Self Study process will be forthcoming in the future issues of Anchors Away.
CONTINUING EDUCATION WORKSHOPS HAVE POSSIBLE INTEREST FOR ALUMNI

GTA Reaches Out To Northeast Georgia

Jim Hammond, newly named Director of the Gainesville Theatre Alliance (GTA), has innovated some programming that is defining the GTA as a regional theatre for Northeast Georgia.

Hammond, who most recently served as director of Theatre at Georgia College (Milledgeville), is developing a “partnership” program with GTA and various communities in Northeast Georgia. Under the program, the GTA would share its vast resources with the communities and help them in their efforts to build and/or to enhance their programs. Currently, dialogue is underway in White, Lumpkin, Habersham, Forsyth, Gwinnett, and Jackson counties. The GTA would benefit with increased ticket sales from residents in those counties.

Hammond’s philosophy is that “good theatre breeds good theatre,” and he believes that when good theatre is presented in Gainesville, a hunger will be created in the viewers’ minds for good theatre in their own communities. He is planning theatre workshops at the College at which interested persons in outlying counties could attend which would strengthen their programs.

Simon Reynolds has been appointed Technical...
Director of the GTA. He served as Construction Foreman with Satori Limited, Atlanta, and as Technical Director for the production, "Unto These Hills," in Cherokee, N.C. He also worked with Hammond at Georgia College.

Hammond replaced Ed Cabell, who resigned as Director of the GTA in the spring after 22 years of outstanding service. Cabell is remaining at Gainesville College as Professor of Speech and Drama and is advising and assisting international students.

The Gainesville Theatre Alliance is a cooperative venture among Gainesville College, Brenau College, and a community support group. Many alumni will remember it as the College Theatre.

Phelps, Poole Selected for Eleanor Crawford Award

Two long-time, dedicated employees of Gainesville College have become the first recipients of a new award presented by the GC Alumni Association. Clara Phelps, manager of the bookstore, cafeteria, and snack bar, and Earl Poole, skilled trades worker, received the award for outstanding College staff member. The award, to be an annual recognition, has been named the Eleanor Crawford Award in honor of the first staff employee of the College.

The awards were presented at the College’s annual Work Conference in September, and Mrs. Crawford was on hand to assist in presenting the awards.

Mrs. Phelps has been associated with the College since 1970. She is well-known throughout Gainesville-Hall County and Northeast Georgia for her excellent food service.

Mr. Poole has been employed by the College since 1967. Over the years, he has performed "above and beyond" expectations by solving utility problems at the institution, some of which have occurred at late-night hours.

The awards were presented by Alumnus Sammy Smith who indicated that the selection was made on the basis of nominations by faculty, staff, and students. Criteria for the selection included loyalty, dedication, and commitment to the College. Serving on a Selection Committee with Smith were Harriett McNeal and Ricky Pugh.
NEW MATH AT GAINESVILLE COLLEGE
Certified by Gainesville College Math Instructors

Math Instructors (l-r) Susan Aycock, Christy Gregory, and Deborah Bolding calculate how $25 is equal to $75. All three instructors are alumni of Gainesville College.

YES, YOUR $25 (or more) CONTRIBUTION TO THE ALUMNI SCHOLARSHIP TRUST WILL BE DOUBLE-MATCHED BY THE FEDERAL ENDOWMENT CHALLENGE GRANT AND WILL EQUAL $75! AND...WE WILL SEND YOU A 25th ANNIVERSARY COMMEMORATIVE COCA-COLA BOTTLE AS A "THANK YOU" FOR PARTICIPATING IN THIS CAMPAIGN.

GC has been designated to receive $1.5 million in endowment funding, contingent upon the GC Foundation raising $750,000 in endowment contributions. That means that for every $1 raised, the GC Endowment actually receives $3. To date, more than $630,000 in local funds has been raised.

In 1989 more than 300 alumni contributed to the Gainesville College Foundation. Your help is needed TODAY to meet the $750,000 goal. We do not want to leave a single dollar unclaimed in Washington, D.C. Let's bring the entire $1.5 million to Northeast Georgia to provide scholarships for Gainesville College students.
